

States of Matter

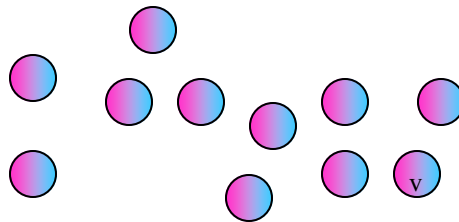

Solid

A solid has a definite shape it takes up the definite amount of space. The particles of matter make up a solid are packed tight.

Liquid

A liquid the particles of matter can move freely and has no definite shape it sometimes take the shape of it's container

Gas

A gas is a state of matter in an gas the particales can move freely they can move from one another than a solid or a liquid

