

Charlotte's Web
Book Report
By Michelle Shih

Summary

There was a girl named Fern. She stopped her dad from killing a runt. A runt is a pig that is smaller than others. She fed him and took care of him and also named him Wilbur. When Wilbur wasn't a baby anymore, she sold her pig for 6 dollars. The one she sold to was her uncle Homer Zuckerman that owned a barn cellar. She could just walk to visit him because the barn was near her house. When it was school time, Fern didn't come. He felt lonely. He heard a voice and it said: go to sleep. You will see me in the morning. Salutations! It was a spider named Charlotte. Then the old lamb said he was going to die. So Charlotte wrote on her web some pig, terrific, radiant, and humble. After Charlotte died, Wilbur never forgot what Charlotte had done for him.

Opinion/Recommendation

Wow! This book is as pretty as a flower. This is a very good book to read. It is also very nice. I like it because it uses sense and smell. It also describes the characters. I really would recommend it to a friend. I would recommend it because I know my friends would love it.
